

Kids of all ages love trains

"It ain't a railroad if you don't derail." But it's all good fun. They are open Monday thru Friday, but make sure you've called ahead for train ride reservations at 541-783-3030, so you can take advantage of all this world's longest miniature railroad has to offer. You and your older children are in for a great day of exploration.

Stop in first at Harvest Depot in La Pine for sack lunches.

After checking in at the Museum office, take a walking tour of the yard to see the museum pieces, including the snow spreader and snow plow. Then have a blast as a docent takes you on an open-air train tour of the area. Visit their website at trainmtn.org

Train Mountain Railroad Museum

Before You Go

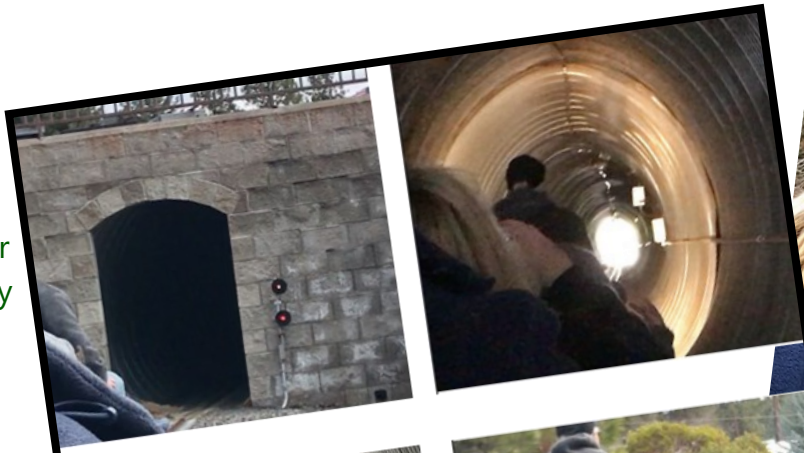

The trains aren't suitable for young children. The train rides are free, but worth the donation asked. Make sure you sign the participant release in the office before taking either tour. During the "shoulder" seasons, you may have the museum to yourselves.

Amenities

Restrooms, picnic tables.

Bring with you

Sun screen, bug repellent, sun hats, food, water, and a camera. Take as little as possible on the train ride.

Through the tunnel!
